EDITORIAL

TUESDAY ELECTION DAY

We frankly base our appeal that Appomattox people go to the polling places next Tuesday, on a basis of "STAYING IN THE HABIT." The officials to be voted on have no opposition, and they will go into office just as legally if the whole county casts but 50 votes as they will if the county casts 1,600 votes.

However, being a "regular voter" is a mighty fine thing. If the garments of Democracy are not worn, they become moth-eaten. Unused machinery becomes rusty. Unused ballots are a reflection upon the citizenship of the county.

When it comes to voting, Appomattox has something of a reputation. It's a reputation, all of us should look upon with pride. Our usual vote in comparison with total population is one of the best in the State. Our people would be very negligent were they to permit indifference to the ballot box to rob them of that reputation. So, don't forget that is election day, and some time during the day, go to your precinct polling place and cast your ballot.

Where We Should Look

While Europe is fighting, Uncle Sam should be making hay, and the best business harvest we can reap is in South America. Germany and Great Britain do over half a billion dollars worth of business in South America. Now is the time for us to be "go-getters" and do business with South America! And if we have to sell on credit, we'd better take our chances with the Southern boys!

A Unique Record

We Americans are record -conscious. No matter what it may be, some individual can set a record, and be sure to receive acclaim. The champion hog-callers, champion flag-pole sitters, champion pie eaters, champion corn huskers, champions of this and that.

But now Miss Jennie C. Powers of Germantown, Pa., comes forward with a new and unique record that seems to be very much worth while. As far as is known she is the champion church goer of the United States, having attended church services in the Westside Presbyterian Church at Germantown, every Sunday for more than sixty-four years.

Miss Powers started her attendance at church every Sunday morning when she was one year old. She has never missed a Sunday since. The church was closed during the influenza epidemic of 1918, she went there every Sunday morning just the same and worshipped alone.

We doubt if anyone in this section could come anywhere near this remarkable record set by this good lady, but we think it would be of interest to know what some local records might be in regular and constant church attendance. We would like to find out if we have anyone with a perfect record of church attendance for as much as ten years or more.

—From The Waverly Dispatch.

The "Inside Pages" too

One of the problems of every publisher is to make his "inside" pages so interesting and readable that his subscribers won't just scan the front page and think they have read the newspaper! Frequently a news article is accompanied by the request ..... "front page, please!" That is all right, and we are glad to comply where make-up permits, but we do urge readers to give the "inside pages" a going-over, too!

The writer takes particular delight in reading the "neighborhood news letters" which predominate the "inside pages." Although we do not know all the people whose personal and social activity is chronicled, we nevertheless find these news letters to be choice items and reader interest. We have always operated a weekly newspaper on the theory that the doings in Japan, Berlin or Washington, were never so fascinating or important to our subscribers as the News of our own county and its wonderful people.

Many weekly newspaper, and our own could doubtless be included, pay a minimum of attention to making their "inside pages" newsy and attractively made up. But, frankly, it is these very "inside pages" which carry the advertising that makes the publication of the paper possible.

Tax Burden Nearer Home

Most of the loud complaints voiced about the burden of taxes are directed against the Federal Government. Opponents of the New Deal are continually harping on the subject and grieving over the fate of their unborn descendants who will be pauperized to pay off the national debt. An examination of the latest figures on taxation, however, shows that these wails and criticisms are aimed at the wrong target. The taxes that weigh heaviest and pinch hardest are nearer home.

During the fiscal year 1938 a total of $15,992,000,000 was collected in taxes in the United States by the Federal Government, the States and the local governments. Of this the Federal Government collected $6,242,000,000, or only about 38 per cent of the national total, so that combined State and local authorities took nearly two-thirds of the taxpayer's money. The States collected $4,202,000,000 and the local governments $5,548,000,000.

The Federal Government's most important sources of revenue were the taxes on corporation income, on individual income, and on liquor and on tobacco. Revenue from each of these three sources exceeded a billion dollars. State government's relied upon automotive taxes as their most important source of revenue, while local governments got their chief revenue from property taxes with sales and excise taxes next in importance.

Not only are the total taxes taken by the Federal Government from the public much less than what is taken by the State and local governments combined, but a large part of the Federal revenue went back to the States and local governments. In addition to the expenditures on the various work programs, the Federal Government expended $633,000,000 in the form of grants to the State governments and a total of $172,000,000 in grants to the local governments. The bulk of these totals was accounted for by grants for education, highways and public welfare.

A Vacancy To Be Filled

It has been quite some time since the regretable death of George W. Koiner, distinguished commissioner of agriculture for Virginia. Governor Price is doubtless looking over the field with great care before appointing a successor. However, we see no need for extended delay in filling this important post. How about it, your Excellency?

Has Its Bad Angle

The major unfortunate angle to the proposed neutrality bill, is the fact that it may well drive American shipping from the seas. The "cash and carry" plan means just that, ... American ships will virtually be kept off the European waters, and have to concentrate on South American and Pacific voyages. We have gone to considerable expense and effort to build up a merchant fleet, and is disconcerting to see our ships we have kept in port. Most of us had rather see American ships keep to their home ports than see us drawn into a European war, but it can only make us that much more bitter against these deserters the councils of peace for the dire evils of war.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for November 5

RIGHTEOUSNESS IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:17-20, 38-45; 6:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect—Matthew 5:48.

"Righteousness in the kingdom," the title of our lesson, properly relates its teaching to the kingdom of the Messiah which is to come on the earth, and to the condition which shall then prevail. At the same time we agree with Dr. James M. Gray that it would be wrong to press this too far and to say that the Sermon on the Mount has no application whatever to the Christian church or the time in which we live, for God is the same through all dispensations and the underlying principles of His government never change.*

Certainly it is true that if all of the men and all of the nations of the earth were on this Armistice Sunday true followers of Christ and ready to carry out the teachings of this lesson, there would no longer be any possibility of war. This means that the best peace propaganda is the sending of missionaries and teachers to all the earth to win men to Christ.

Our lesson should be studied and taught with great care lest we confuse morality with Christianity and leave it appear that men are justified before God by their good works rather than by their faith in Christ.

I. Christ Fulfills the Law (5:17-20).

The law of God is eternal, never to be abrogated, never set aside. Christ Himself, however, we might properly say that He was in reality the Law-giver and thus had power and authority over the law, indicated His purpose in coming to be that of giving the law its full meaning, not of destroying it. One could wish that those who profess to be His servants might have the same treasure of regard for God's law. If they did, they obviously would not be so ready to ignore it, so quick to change it or explain it away, and far more ready to accept with their Master every "jot and tittle," that is, even the minutest detail of His Word.

Recognizing Christ as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace and by His strength. Certainly it should not lead anyone to lawlessness or carelessness regarding details of the daily walk. Fellowship with the Saviour should be revealed in consistent living (v. 20).

II. Christ Explains the Law (5:21-48).

Look at verses 21 to 37. The spirit of murder is anger (vv. 21, 22). A lustful look is adultery (vv. 27-30), and it is better to be blind than to be guilty of it. Divorce is linked very plainly with adultery (vv. 31, 32). Swearing is forbidden (vv. 33-37). Thus Christ strips outward conformity to the law of its apparent virtue and reveals that with God it is the spirit that gives meaning to the act.

He goes on to make plain that God alone is wise enough to take vengeance, that we ought never to retaliate with evil for evil. Note that verse 39 probably refers to an insult rather than to physical violence; that in verse 40 it is a question of a difference of opinion in which the other man feels that he has a legal right to your coat; and that here, as in verses 41 and 42 it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your rights or property, but rather of doing what is required of you in an ungrudging spirit and of being generous with others who are in need. In Christ we are to be like our heavenly Father and love our enemies (vv. 43-45).

III. Christ Illustrates the Law (6:1-4).

Possibly it would be more appropriate for us to say that Christ here illustrates the right and the wrong way of fulfilling the law. How very clear He makes it that the one who, while ostensibly doing the will of God, actually is seeking the recognition and glory of men has received his full reward, for men have applauded his act of generosity. The transaction is complete and God has nothing to do with it at all. On the other hand, the one who gives in the spirit of Christ, not wanting men to know of his faithful stewardship (v. 4), and in fact making no reckoning of it himself (v. 3), may be certain that he has a heavenly Father who takes careful account of the loving deeds of His children and who will reward him, both in this world and in the world to come.

Memories of Happy Days

Why is it that the memory of some days in the past, unmarked by any striking event, always come to us like the breath of spring? It may be that on those days, in reward for some forgotten act, God drew us close to Him, and that we absorbed something of His eternal peace and happiness.

Westside Evergreen News Letter

Westside Evergreen, Nov. 1.- After several weeks of very mild weather, the present week— Monday— is ushered in with a cold rain, which coming as it does just after the great crop has been seeded, will insure the germination of the seed.

Right much corn has been husked, and due to the excessive summer rainfall, there is much rotten and otherwise damaged corn. Among those having corn huskings in the recent past are: S. R. Paulette, who husked a portion of his large crop of pop-corn; also W. C. Garrett, who husked some of his fine field corn last Friday night.

Many of us well remember the good old days" before the advent of the automobile, the tractor and other truck, when on almost every farm there was the annual corn shucking around this season of the year. At these huskings beer was not unusual for the farmer's wife to have a quilting bee on the same day of the husking, thus transforming an otherwise tedious task into a day of social intercourse. In one of the great corn producing states in the mid west there are champion corn huskers who annually attempt to defend their title as the champion husker before huge throngs of on-lookers who travel for miles for this event.
